

Monuments, memorials and difficult memories - Appendix

Appendix 1.

Images of the sites

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Battle_of_Stiklestad#/media/File:Olavsst%C3%B8tta.jpg

Olavsstøtta is a monument in the Stiklestad National Cultural Center. It was erected in 1807 in memory of the Battle of Stiklestad. The memorial is one of the oldest preserved public monuments in Norway

Pictures from Falstad Forest and Memorial:

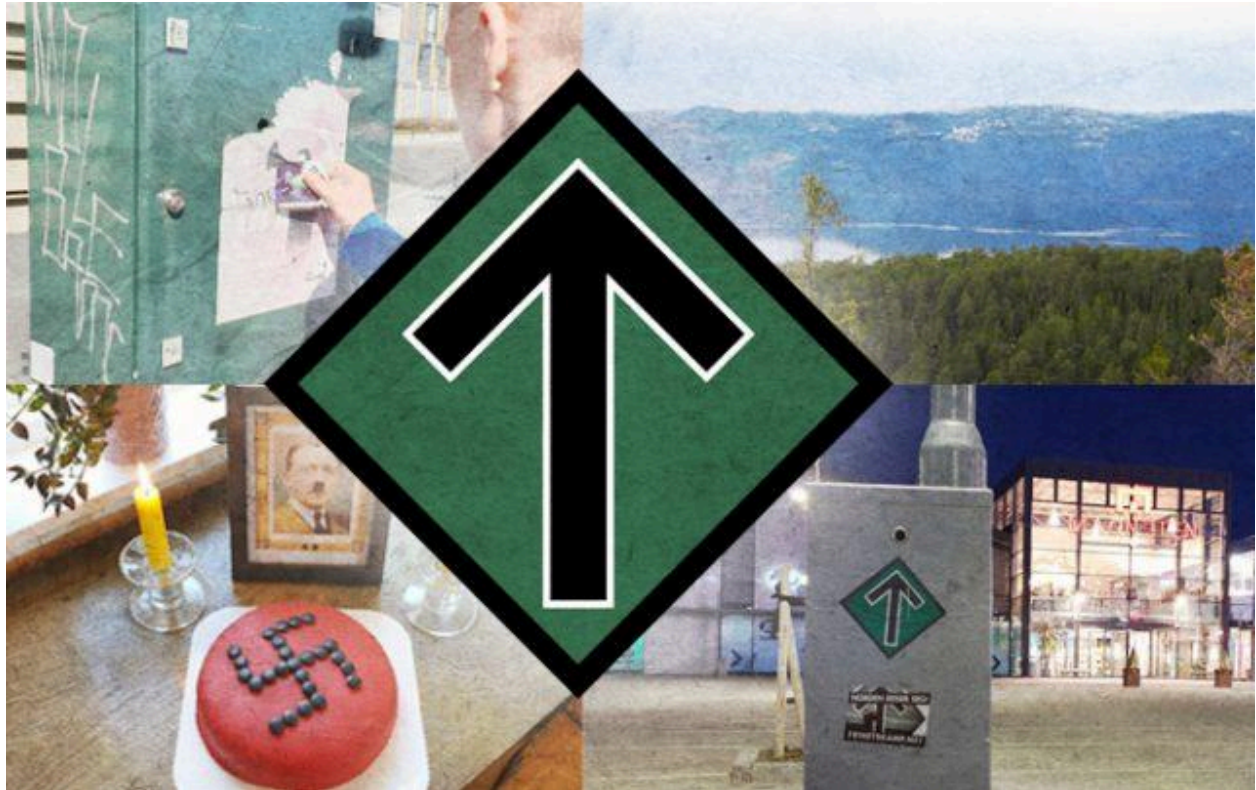

<https://www.visitnorway.com/listings/the-falstad-forest-a-memorial-from-wwii/218402/>

Appendix 2. Information from the right extremist group publication (translation into English)

BATTLE WEEKEND Rede 4 organized a battle weekend to honor Adolf Hitler's 130th birthday at Easter. Several tours and activism were carried out around Trøndelag.

The members met on Maundy Thursday in Trondheim and the activities started there. Propaganda was hung up in various places in the city center while waiting for all those who had registered to show up. When everyone was gathered, the journey continued to the venue where the meeting was to be held. The members were hungry and a good dinner was served. After the food was consumed and digested, the group went out again for a short forest walk before evening.

Good Friday began the day with a traditional homemade breakfast and of course lots of coffee before the trip to Stjørdal. In beautiful spring weather, the city center was bombarded with propaganda and the occasional flyer was also handed out to passersby. When you were satisfied, the trip continued to a local landmark; Steinvikholm Castle on Skatval. The castle was built in the early 16th century but has undergone many changes over the years.

Unfortunately, the castle was closed for renovations, so we didn't get to experience what it looked like inside the walls. Instead, we enjoyed the beautiful weather and looked around the islet. When we felt satisfied, we moved on for more activism.

Flyers and stickers were distributed to mailboxes and hung on poles in both Stjørdal and Levanger municipalities before the trip back to the venue for dinner. The giants were naturally good and hungry, so not a bit of the dinner went to waste.

After coffee and conversation, the trip went out again to engage in activism. This time the trip went towards Stiklestad but they made sure to stop by Falstad prison camp, or SS-Strafgefangenenlager Falstad in German. Mainly used for Norwegian prisoners but also prisoners from Eastern Bloc countries and Denmark.

When we arrived at Stiklestad, darkness began to fall, so we made sure to first visit the square where the NS monument stood. This beautiful monument, designed by sculptor Wilhelm Rasmussen, was damaged and buried after the war. After a short memorial service, we continued to see the rest of the square and learn a little about its history. On the way back to the venue, we stopped by a shopping mall in Levanger to do more activism. Back at the venue, everyone was satisfied with the day and could sleep with a clear conscience.

Saturday, April 20, Adolf Hitler's birthday, started with everyone gathering for breakfast and planning the day. After breakfast, there was coffee and cake before more activism took place, this time back to the center of Trondheim. Here, lots of stickers and flyers were also hung up and handed out to passersby. After a few hours, everyone seemed satisfied and the activity ended. They said goodbye to friends who had to leave on other errands and the rest returned to the venue for a last joint dinner. Later that evening, they decided to take a last trip out into Trøndelag's beautiful nature.

In short, Easter was a great experience for all those who attended from Rede 4 with lots of activism and trips and of course good camaraderie and stronger bonds were formed. More meetings are planned in the future.

The fight needs you – apply for membership today!